

---

Subject: Re: Don't bottle it up

Posted by renalpha on Tue, 25 Mar 2008 19:38:07 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Dave Anderson wrote on Tue, 25 March 2008 02:39I don't think you can really say that suicide is selfish or not. You can say that a person who commits suicide is selfish because they leave their loved ones in despair, but you can also say that it is the loved ones who are being selfish, because they would rather have the emotionally disturbed person stay alive and suffer. Some people truly (or seem that they) cannot be helped in anyway; their emotions are too strong and overwhelming for anything to have any effect. Its hard to say though, because each person is different, and no, we don't know how they feel. We can try to understand, but we aren't inside their minds, and we simply don't feel what they feel. It can be strongly argued either way.

in my opinion it is selfish its walking away from your problems to immature to confrontate them you leave people behind, who love you even when you think you dont.

---