neither do I, you don't see me using that as an excuse

Cabal8616 wrote on Mon, 21 April 2008 02:37Yet another arrogant response. How did he "lose" the debate? Because you said so? Yeah, no. Doesn't work that way, sorry.
because as I said right at the start and has yet to be refuted...

stealing games < making games some people don't like actively attacking a company just because you don't like their products < making games some people don't like

There's NOTHING you can say that will change these facts, and frankly you're a moron if you can't accept them.

Cabal8616 wrote on Mon, 21 April 2008 02:37Minor reading mistake, my bad. But still. There's a difference between cheating, and what Oblivion's done. If you can't see that, then maybe you should just stop posting in this topic.

Why are you using straw-man arguments? When did I compare cheating to Oblivion? I compared MAKING CHEATS to Oblivion. I don't know how many times this fundamental difference needs pointing out to you. It's rather confusing that you admit your reading mistake, and then forget saying that and make the mistake again almost immediately.

Cabal8616 wrote on Mon, 21 April 2008 02:37Anyways, if that's ALL you think he's done, that's pretty lame.

hey, he said I've done nothing... in terms of accuracy I think I'm winning so far Cabal8616 wrote on Mon, 21 April 2008 02:37And, why is it so hard to comprehend that he pirates them because if he bought it and still ranted, it'd look retarded that he then just payed for a product he thinks is shitty?

it's not hard to comprehend at all, it's just a really feeble argument that scarcely warrants acknowledging.

Cabal8616 wrote on Mon, 21 April 2008 02:37If he were to actively buy alot of EA games, then just say they're shitty, wouldn't it seem retarded that he's saying EA sucks when he's just fueling them more?

the solution is simply not buy EA games, buy a different company's games... or better yet, use the front door once in a while. Only a self-righteous prick would see the "solution" to his personal dislike to be actively attacking the gaming company, potentially ruining other gamers' enjoyment of said games... they do exist, you know, otherwise why does EA have so much money?

Is this good old renegade community syndrome (RCS) whereby there are "real" gamers and everyone else is wrong, no matter how the relative size of the two groups? You know, the mentality which causes half the community here to spout idiocy like "EA doesn't listen to the community because they're not trying to please us, they're trying to please a different (much bigger) group of people than us"?
