No, that isn't true.

It is because all the servers with people on them use these changes.

And people don't play those servers because of the changes, they play because other people are on them. One server probably has a few officials who would go onto it and wait for other people to join. The only reason those other people join is because there is so little people playing Renegade that they join that server just because of the few official people playing it, regardless of what bot the server runs or the mine limit they set up.
