I respectfully ask you not let a small minority represent the community and site as a whole, especially those ones who happen to be suspended from its forums and DQ'd from its tournaments. If there's any better official indicator of who ISN'T a worthy representative of the community, it would surely have to be that.

Two respected members of cw.cc and the ren-community battling it out on stuff like this tells me that there are some real problems. I get the impression there are other things at play here, too.

But that's just me.
