Now you're starting to make sense. Most of top 40 music disgusts me as well, because it's made by a bunch of people, who were "created" by a record label just to earn as much money as possible. Then, through marketing, a certain group of people starts to "enjoy" (it's hard for me to believe they actually enjoy this type of music) this music, whilst forcing it up on others, which basically come down to this: Like this type of music to be cool.

Sometimes I scroll through one of my mates iTunes and all I see are popular songs. They don't buy an entire album because they like the band, nooooo, they download the ONE popular song from the band/artist and play it over and over and never take the trouble to listen or buy the album, showing they don't actually appreciate the music. They just listen to it because it is the cool thing to do.
