

---

Subject: Re: 45% of Americans believe that humans did not evolve

Posted by cheesesoda on Thu, 05 Jun 2008 20:18:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

R315r4z0r wrote on Thu, 05 June 2008 14:47 This is what I think. I think we used to live on another planet. The species was dying, so sent out genetic information on micro organisms on meteorites across space. The information was implanted into Earth. Fish came from that code, then evolved into land-amphibious animals, then into land animals, then humans developed later from that.

So it was Humans -> Micro Organisms -> Humans.

Now where the original Humans evolved from could of been different, so I didn't go that far back. That would work... except for the whole mass extinction of the dinosaurs. I doubt that there could have been any calculation that the earth would be hit and cause a mass extinction of all of the animals living primarily above ground that gave way for small mammals to thrive and evolve into humans.

---