It's another part of a combination in randomising your movements to make you a harder target to hit when in battle. Movements include, moving left and right, crouching, jumping + moving left right while doing these, and.....shift walking. Shift walk is just another movement. The thing about shift walk is it makes it somewhat easier to aim as u move slower. Personally I hate shifters myself because they are hard to predict, making them hard to hit yet they kill me so easy.

Also Just on a note I don't really shift myself because I never got into the habit, but I am seeing more and more people do it lately on the sniper servers, it might be the next new sniper craze (the current obsession is hugging I find)

The only flaw is that one is accused of cheating because holding the shift key I heard activates a variation of an aimbot, perhaps why some of them kill me so easy. However wouldn't the community have already found ways to pick up this aimbot? So why is shift walking so forbidden?

The question is that I wouldn't mind finally learning to use my pinky cuz I always avoided it but I have heard people get banned from servers for shift walking, not necessarily being thoroughly tested and confirmed cheating. What are people's opinions on this somewhat taboo subject in Rene world?
