If so, I won't buy it. That just doesn't work for an FPS like that.

That's called Battlefield Heroes, and I for one are looking forward to that game over Bad Company. I realized that after playing a whole lot of graphically orgasmic games (Looking at you UT3), graphics/destructible this and that does not equate to a great game. Yeah, that's the truth really. Graphics don't make a game, they're basically the icing to a delicious cake if you think about it. If you have a cake made of nothing but icing, it's going to give you a massive sugar rush and probably not taste that good after a few bites.

Inexplicably long analogies aside, I kind of want to get Bad Company, but right now I think I'm going to wait until I can get some good reviews on it before I waste my 60$$
