

---

Subject: Re: Shit.....

Posted by Rev on Thu, 31 Jul 2008 00:15:59 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

lot in as the account administrator and try it? dont know if it will keep the setting when you log in.

start->all programs->accessories->cmd type: net user administrator /active:yes to turn the account administrator on. restart and log in on that account. Make sure to turn the account off when your done: net user administrator /active:off (i think. Never turned my off, just put a password on it.)

---