But I props him for coming clean and being honest.

You once gave me the same credits for similar post to his.

(although mine more heart felt and honest im willing to bet)

The thing is, it's not the first time he's come clean in public. This is at least the second time. It's like the boy who cries wolf. Nobody believes a liar, even if they are being sincere because they have lied in the past.

"I'm not going to rob from you again."

"I promise I'm clean. I've learned my lesson."

"I want to be a respectable member of society. I'm going to respect others and their property."

After a while... all you hear is, "Fuck being clean. I'm just going to take advantage of your altruism and then take advantage of it because I don't give a fuck about you."
