Romaner wrote on Fri, 01 August 2008 14:34 what i dont understand is how a bus full of people could not do anything about it, including the driver. drivers of these cross country busses should be atleast trained to use somekind of a weapon or have a taser or something... not just run off the bus and close the door behind them. im not saying to fight the guy that is holding a machette or whatever, but as far as i heard this person only had a small to mid size knife 2 people could have easily restrained him, since witnesses said he wasnt even paying attention to anyone around him while stabbing the passanger.

heck just punch him in the back of the head so he gets dissy enough for you to grab the knife.

apparently as the passangers were holding the bus door from the outside to keep the guy held up in there till the police get there he was banging the victims severed head on the windows of the bus but nonethe less this is some messed up shit right there, something you definetly hope not to ever hear about again.

Could he not have driven off with the bus?
