It really depends on the situation, on how well I know the person or how many times I've interacted with said person. This goes for both real life and on the internet.

I wont ever jump down someone's throat for attacking me. But depending on how well I know the person or how long I've been talking with the person in the past, I will speak back, but I don't really attack back, just try to reason with them.

I won't go saying "Oh yea, well you're a moron" unless it's obvious I'm joking about it.
