If sitting behind the PC is your hobby then its probably a bad idea to do the same thing as your work. At least so far it's not working for me.

Realize that your probably get to sit behind the PC 5 hours a day if not 8.

Not saying that it can't be exciting because IT is very widespread. IT managers, Network engineers, Consultancy, Programmers.

i already do sit at my pc form morning to night WHEN THERES NOTHING ELSE BETTER TO DO since i was little and making it a job may just make life more fun when i get done off the pc

Heres a question on program here is called

Software Applications & Programming: which comes with

Visual Basic programmer or developer

C++ programmer or developer

Java programmer or developer system application developer pretty much they learn programming languages to make and debug software? yes or no?
