oh lol it just strikes me!

Do you have the key settings saved? You have to save it.

You configure your keys, then save it and give it a name. Then you use that saved key configuration.

Make changes and click on that button:

Then type unique name for the configuration. I already have one saved for sniping:

So far it sounds to me like you are making the key changes but then not saving it. That's why you keep going back to setting them up again.

Once you save, then it stays that way unless you choose to use the default settings.
