I will not name these people directly but I will refer to them in code as "The Body" and "The Grumpy OAP". Leaving no clues as to who they are of course.

These red headed people have nothing better to do with their lives but try and eliminate me from having any fun with this game/community, thus far they are failing. It is clear to me that they do not like me and it goes both ways, however they do have a good friendship with Crimson.

But what is to stop them from asking Crimson to somehow block me from playing Renegade after this patch is released? Frankly, I do not trust Crimson and I think she would follow such order. i think you should be more specific about what you mean.

relax, theres nothing to be worried about, because the only owner of this game is EA. unless you do something against the rules, neither crimson nor anyone else can stop you playing this beautiful game, ever.
