

---

Subject: Re: I don't trust Crimson

Posted by luv2pb on Thu, 09 Oct 2008 08:31:56 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

First off let me clarify to everyone I am the person he is talking about. The other person he is referring to (I think) was simply teaching me a few things about mIRC scripting and, like Crimson, has nothing to do with this.

As for the person in question let me clarify something else. I'm not preventing him from playing the game. I'm keeping him out of EVERYTHING n00bstories where he is not welcome. Period. I would justify that but this thread pretty much does that for me.

This wanna be script kiddie thinks he is a bad ass because he downloaded a proxy program and can get around a standard gzline. Well guess what? He isn't "winning" shit. My custom anti-DrasticDR script is more than successful at keeping him out. I would be more than happy to display the line after line of his dumb ass getting teh bant if desired.

Just today he has attempted (unsuccessfully I might add) to gain access to our network 15 separate times. 78 times in total so far since I started my mission.

Guess he forgot to mention that stuff when he posted. I'm sure it was a simple over sight on his part.

liquidv2 wrote on Sat, 04 October 2008 15:08 someone tried joining the #DrasticDR room on irc and got zlined by a script made by some n00bstories guy

it wasn't even DrasticDR so maybe it should be edited

My anti-DrasticDR script was still a work in progress and very basic at that point. The wrongful gzline was quickly fixed. I'm a n00b when it comes to mIRC scripting and this whole thing has been kinda cool. I wrote this script mostly on my own (with a little help from gkl and jadame along the way) and have learned a lot. It is VERY effective and has zero false positives. I'm pretty proud of it actually. So double win for me!

PS Sean Wiltshire: ohai

---