I can see where you are all coming at though if you were to take the Ramjet into the real world, could you still run and shoot at the same time? Or are you bound to take cover and remain hidden?

Nobody can tell for sure, heavy modifications to the .50 could have been made for you to adapt for run and gun purposes but considering every action has an equal and opposite reaction, to fire it as far and fast as you can in Renegade you'd need quite the sturdy upper torso keeping you stationary at the time you fire the bullet to prevent a miss and any injuries that may be caused by the gun itself from recoil lol!
