I don't see what's special about your forums, BTW. It's a standard skin on a standard free forum package on a non dedicated domain name :S.

It would probably do everyone much good to keep the community united at one place and i suggest that place would be right here, where it has been for all these years.

You know it would be awesome if you could ask Crimson to make a Mod Release Forum
You are probably right that its best to keep the community on 1 place, but we'll see whats going to happend in the future.
