I'm with ATI, Their hardware in some cases is much better than nVidia's and their cards are generally made for not only games, but high quality images from movies, and if you want to be real fancy, custom encoder cards for video rendering.

to me their an all-around purpose card and I don't use my computer for games only so yeah, and generally their shit is cheap.

However if nVidia release a card that is pretty bitchin' I'd buy it knowing it's good and suits me well.
