You're right, BC being moved up would mean others move down by one, and that probably isn't fair to them.

It would be great to have a large player base back again, and servers maxed out how I used to remember them, but that isn't going to happen (well, not unless I win the Euro millions lottery and buy renegade from EA, release it as free to download and advertise it on television, radio and other media, and I swear I would actually do that...).

The thing is, we all know there are less and less players all the time, I honestly think black-cell deserves to be there all the way till the end. All those other servers that would be pushed down do owe black-cell in one way or another, whether it makes it right or not that they get pushed down I don't know.
