Holy crap. If there is one video game company in the industry that has never heard the term "If it ain't broken, don't fix it!" it would have to be the Sonic Team.

Every freaking Sonic game they make is A NEW GENRE OF GAME! Even if the last one was a killer success, they still think it is a good idea to make the next one from scratch scrapping all the good ideas from the last game.

The last Sonic game I truly enjoyed was Sonic Adventure 2 Battle. And that was released in 2002! That's 7 years of crappy Sonic games! (However, I'll admit, I thought Sonic Riders was fun, but it got old kinda fast... but it was a racing game)

And as for Mario, I don't really know, but I've seemed to have lost complete interest in him. I just don't find it entertaining anymore. When I was back in 1st and 2nd grade, Mario 64 was like the best game ever, now looking at my little brother play it (and him making me play it) it seems just totally different. A lot of my friends still go crazy when new Mario games come out, but I just don't see what the fuss is about.

For example, a few of my friends thought that The New Super Mario Bros. for the DS was an excellent game, but I found it so boring that I stopped playing after the 3rd level and sold it to someone else.

..Come to think of it, I have Mario Galaxy for Wii and I haven't played that in like a year... I really should continue playing that.. lol
