Sorry for long bump, some java programmers I was talking to was saying start slow write up some small scripts and batch and wel start off small, while others say jump right into (which I will in summer time no time for it now)

well let me ask this, is it kind alike school, where you can start of small but dont matter cause its all new? what I mean is even if i do write and learn small crap that lets say is nothing like lets say c++ but it gives me the feel of learning it just how moving a fake ps2 steering wheel gives u a feel of driving even tho its nothing related to real driving
