I hope people realize that you probably chose the fastest link nearest to your location, which doesn't actually mean you'll ever hit your max speed through the actual internet. For example, Europe's infrastructure is destroying North America's and so if anyone in Europe attempts to download from a North American server, the odds are they'll never hit their top speed. It's definitely a bonus and awesome to have a large pipe going to your location, though that's for sure if you plan on doing some epic multi-downloading/data transferring.
