If you don't have anything positive to say, then why mention it?

I would say a negative constructive comment IS positive.

I wouldn't use a website that looks very cluttered with useless information with a bad colour theme and a humongous ugly banner. You also have loaded it with useless scripts, such as the "download counter" which only frustrates me more when I can't find a direct link and have to go through more than enough links to find something. The HTACCESS logs provide a good enough download log. Negative comment? Yes it is, I'm entitled to it.
