you could also look into nissan altima. since its in the same price range as the camry. has better looks and interior in my opinion, and better gas milage.

and i think they just lowered the starting price on the altimas in US.

yes i will give you this, i am biased since i have a 2008 altima. have had it since september. I personally can not say anything bad about the car. well except the paint is fairly easy to scratch, but other than that its a great spacious car.

but if you are only looking at civic vs camry. the civic has a more sporty and tight suspension and steering. while the camry has more room and comfort.

i personally always said that honda is for young people, and toyota is for older folks... i would say that there is not much difference between the two when it comes to quality.

but i do strongly suggest you look at the altima, because of the CVT continuously variable transmission it is really good on gas.

both the 2.5l 4 Cylinder, and the 3.5l v6 are the best gas milage in their class and most horsepower and torque in their class.
