
Subject: Re: Any fans of grunge and 90 rock/metal music?

Posted by [NE]Fobby[GEN] on Mon, 26 Oct 2009 23:04:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

RoCk2Star wrote on Mon, 26 October 2009 15:47[NEFobby[GEN] wrote on Sun, 25 October 2009 23:36]GEORGE ZIMMER wrote on Sun, 25 October 2009 08:56Most of it pretty much sucks. Nirvana was damn overrated, honestly.

A few decent bands have come out of the 90's, but they didn't get too popular until 2000+. Really, people who say the 90's were good, are retarded. They clearly don't remember boy bands, the utter death of decent rock, the emergence of hip hop, rap rising then dying almost immediately, emo music emerging, and so on.

Agreed.

I actually listen to a lot of post-2000 rock. I know it's not as good as it could be, but I'm not a fan of the old school rock that a lot of people are into nowadays, as I always thought they sounded bland and uninteresting.

These days I'm listening to Avenged Sevenfold, ^, Rise Against, Taproot, Alexisonfire, Sevendust, etc. But a few years ago I was listening to Linkin Park, Sum 41, Jimmy Eat World, and some others.

And yeah I don't listen to rap or hip hop either, though it seems that's all that's on the radio and parties these days.
These band r awesome m8

Yeah. I'm loving Breaking Benjamin's new album "Dear Agony", and I'm very patiently awaiting the new Avenged Sevenfold, Sevendust, Sum 41, Linkin Park, and (I think) Taproot albums that should all be coming out early 2010.

As for the 90s, Foo Fighters were alright. I liked a few of their songs, but as some mentioned earlier, 90s rock and grunge all really sounded similar. Let's not forget that the 90s were dominated by boy bands like the Backstreet Boys, N'Sync, 98 degrees, Hanson (oh god I hate them), some "girl bands" like the Spice Girls and Destiny's Child (I think they were 90s?), and others like Britney Spears and Christina Aguilera.

Overall the 90s were a pretty sad period in music history. Otherwise though it was a pretty good decade.
