Is everything moving too fast?

UT3 might be one of the last high-speed games, the classic FPS is dying out and being replaced by "tactical gameplay" (as if other games didn't involve tactics...) and rechargeable health...this new generation of gamers is so used to the Halos and Call of Dutys, they might actually catch a seizure when they watch Quake or Unreal demos, let alone play a map against some pros.

Not kidding for once, I'm genuinely interested in this...you aren't part of that generation, but playing nothing but Renegade for years will slow down your gaming senses in the same fashion.
