Well this is suprisingly civilised and impersonal.

I never claimed that the world economy wouldn't crumble without the united states. Certain foods would run out. I admit I didn't give the oil much thought. But there would be less to go around. And your econmoy is a great part secondary and tertairy. Your computer industry would fall to shambles though within a few years.

I will add to my list when I come back. Nothing personal but I enjoy civilized discussions like this. A chance to share my views and challenge my mind.
