But anyway, offtopic?

It's not a matter of releasing anything without it now. I've never been a big fan of the TS arc of the C&C story, and I'm not that excited for Reborn's eventual full release. Frankly, I don't care about any of that. You're missing my point.

Earlier in the thread, Renardin advocated splitting TT in two, releasing something now and something later. I'm using Reborn as an example as to why that's a terrible idea. Splitting a release is a cop-out that lowers standards. It caters to procrastination, and leads to the development team resting on their laurels. Maybe Reborn can get away with that, but TT is too important to be compromised so easily.
