Does anyone here over the course of playing Renegade feel that it made other games you played irrelevant?

After playing Renegade for about a year (I got it in Jan 2007), I felt that it was too difficult to put it away AND get on with another game.

Over the course of the past 3 years, I bought many games including TFD, C&C 3, KW, RA3 just for the single player campaigns but was unable to complete them because I would quit halfway and jump to a Ren server. The only game in the past 3 years I managed to finish the Single Player and actually play multiplayer online was Red Faction...which btw is eerily similar to Ren.

Since 2001 when I started playing the Renegade Demo and then the full game I have noticed that everything else doesn't quite stack up. Funny enough I did also play Red Faction and beat that single player campaign. The only other game that keeps me coming back is the original Half-life.
