I do believe that's what I said. Does it matter?

nope, just checking

LOL, you have a book of who's gay and who isn't or something?

Raven, as a gay man, do you believe that you're either born homosexual, or not, and that's the only possibility?

Or is there any room to become homosexual due to environment?

I believe you already answered that quite clearly already, but I just want to make sure.

I have always believed that people can be born homosexual, and this probably makes up for most of all homosexuals, no doubt. However, I also am inclined to think that people can become homosexual due to environment. Is this at least plausible, or in fact insulting to even suggest?

@your fail quote, what I meant, is that I was just checking if he meant it, or if it was an example
