

---

Subject: Re: Random Drug Testing

Posted by Clark Kent on Sat, 20 Mar 2010 00:30:02 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

When I was in 8th grade they took away our Spanish, French, and some other classes that would have given us a head start in high school... Then they gave us more English, Math, Science, History classes because they said our school's test scores were way to low the year before and the state was gonna step in if they were not raised. So after all that and we got a really high average on the test... they told us, "oops, we didn't need to do that for this school the scores were never that bad, we got our schools mixed up"...

Then when I got to high school I transferred schools at the start of 11th grade, I ended up losing half my credits because 2 schools in the same city were on different computer systems... then I was even more fucked because they did not give the same classes, so I started in the middle of classes I knew nothing of.

Then they give all the funding to the rich schools, leaving the poor schools looking like shit still... when the funding was granted to fix them...

Yea, our edumakashin system sucks ass.

---