In my opinion, the people who strictly are opposed to cheaters are the most insane types of gamers.

I think one (like me) can be strictly opposed to cheaters without wanting to jab a knife into someone's skull, and not be insane.

As far as I know, you are not the type of person I was talking about.

I'm talking about the people who take cheaters so incredibly seriously that they fail to grasp the reality that it's merely a game they are playing.

Now, being "insane" doesn't necessarily mean they are bad people. But it does mean that they have an unhealthy perspective on something that is meant to be a leisurely activity.

There is a difference between fighting against cheaters to uphold the enjoyment of the game for others and fighting against cheaters because they piss you off. However, I would go as far to say even people who are committed to ridding cheaters for the good of other players are riding the border of insanity themselves.

a000clownAnime... cartoon... hentai...? Whatever, I'm not familiar what the correct word for it. Click the source link in the first post and you'll see what I mean.

No, I meant your choice of adjective. The word "little." But it wasn't supposed to be taken seriously.
