
Subject: Re: America's Healthcare "Reform" Bill
Posted by Dover on Tue, 23 Mar 2010 20:12:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Kimb "Joe" Kucan wrote on Tue, 23 March 2010 13:05Dover wrote on Tue, 23 March 2010 13:43Seriously. I did a little cheer when I heard it passed, and then I hear what's actually in the bill and I go "...That's it?". At times, I have great faith in humanity and believe we're all destined for and capable of great things, times like these just ruin all of that.
maybe their just taking small steps at a time, not forcing everything at once

Perhaps you might have missed this since you're in Norway, but this process has taken us a year and a half, and the entire time Republicans have been telling us the earth will split in two and demons will come out of hell to rule the world if this bill is passed.

The whole health care bill is basically;

- 1) Insurance companies can't do bullshit like randomly drop customers or cap benefits.
- 2) Uninsured/Uninsurable can join high risk pools.
- 3) $250 for pills to seniors not covered under medicare part B. $250 for pills is nothing.

Really? Really, Republicans?

nikki6ixx wrote on Tue, 23 March 2010 13:09No, it's not perfect, but it's better than what was before

It's kind of hard not to be better than what was before. I realize it's a step in the right direction, but it's maddening to think so much effort has gone to something so seemingly small.
