but then again 'arguing over the internet is like running the special olympics'...
k, what's worse: spending as much time of your life trying to fuck up a computer game you don't even play, or someone who likes the game telling you what a mean lady you are?

idiot.

that's the kind of neanderthal-level logic i would expect from you, frankly.

and yet you just said you were gonna carry on working on cheats and making them harder to detect...

nice that you dodged my post, maybe the truth hurts too much, eh? obviously you know you don't have anywhere near enough coding skill to take up a real challenge, like making a really good anti-cheat. and this realisation is clearly hitting you pretty hard, which is why you're trying to deflect the argument onto everyone who (quite rightly) thinks you're a vacuous twat.
