It's not about you or what you said specifically, it's about his actions in the game and how punishment should or should not carry over onto the forums. You may have not said anything specifically saying that banning a cheater from the forums is going to stop them cheating in Renegade, but that is what this thread is about and you obviously are for him leaving the forum.

As for penalty, there should be none. Not because the damage is done but because he has done nothing wrong.

Oh, my.

What you said before was fucking stupid, but damn.

0x90 "has done nothing wrong".

Quote: I am completely sick and tired of people being labeled for things they do somewhere else. A cheater might cheat in Renegade, but the forum is a totally different place. Sure it might discuss the game and people might carry over their feelings onto the forum, but the fact remains that he has not broken any forum rules.

it's the (de facto) official forum for this game, and when you have someone who's done such an extraordinary amount of harm to the game, a little common sense is a good thing.

Quote: Spoony wrote on Thu, 13 May 2010 14:58 secondly it makes me sick to see more people defend him than flame him (because he's apparently nice and helpful to people on the forum... i'm sorry, but after the unbelievable amount of damage he's done to the players he's talking to, this is a mark of his dishonesty rather than his helpfulness, and it's sad to see how many people fall for it), and it makes me even sicker to see people take a brave stand against those of us who give him a piece of our mind.

That's your opinion but it doesn't make you right.

I wish I understood why people say things as dumb as this. Of course it's my opinion; whose else were you expecting when you saw a post from 'Spoony'?

Quote: I have never encountered him in Renegade nor do I know what 'help' he apparently gives, so what grounds do I have to hold him in contempt?

You think you know enough to say he "has done nothing wrong"...

Quote: You suffered from what he did and therefore you have a right to be angry with him. But like I said, just because you're angry doesn't make it right to ban him from the forum.

this is, again, a remarkably stupid thing to say. Not as bollock-brained as saying 0x90 has done nothing wrong, and maybe not quite as thick as "the more cheats around the better", but still pretty dense. Who said "he should be banned for the sole reason that he made Spoony angry"? When did I ever indicate that making one person angry is justification for a ban?

Quote: Spoony wrote on Thu, 13 May 2010 14:58 thirdly, i've yet to hear a good reason to repudiate what i said in the earlier thread.

Which thread do you mean?
goztow linked to it.
