

---

Subject: Re: Jus wondering ..
Posted by Starbuzz on Wed, 19 May 2010 00:31:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Personally, I feel if TT/Renegadeforums.com admins feel that 0X90 will be a asset, then somehow it will be good to know how exactly he will be so.

Is he going to abandon his fans at ** (the cheat site?)

Is he going to stop releasing any new versions? (he mentioned something along these lines in the other thread I think)

Can he be trusted to help here, work effectively to undo the damage?

Is him being an asset EQUAL renegade being free of undetectable cheats in the near future?

Very doubtful but anyway I hope only the best decisions are made here.

And the million dollar question is why are we having this debate now? Why did this guy show up now? Has anyone from here had any steady form of contact with him all these years? What about the leak was so exciting to him?

When I discovered this forum back in Jan 2007, I only heard small bits of rumours of 0X90 and how he made the cheat. I also heard other rumours too not worth mentioning.

Anyway, as it was mentioned earlier, very little is known about this guy; the guy who has done the most damage to this little universe we have for ourselves called Ren.

Anyway, a analogy is quiet simple: 0X90 is like a defector from a foreign military. But we need to know [FOR SURE] if he is truly a traitorous defector and willing to help us against his old bosses or is he secretly loyal to and helping the country he defected from; gaining more information to help his old country. This analogy isn't perfect but comes close imo.

I do think this is an important question. Personally...honestly, I find it incredibly hard to believe that he is all of a sudden going to abandon his old hobby, come clean, and infact turn into Renegade's huge asset to clean up the mess he created [a mess he doesn't understand/acknowledge]. What is he going to get from this "deal?"

This would be more believable if he infact made some sort of apology and clarified it. It would really hurt if he, as he has been doing, used his newfound grace among TT to improve his cheat or something of that sort (this is very well likely) and next thing we know is a more advanced version? Going on a tangent here but you get the idea...

Trojan wrote on Tue, 18 May 2010 14:03 0x90 single-handedly destroyed the game we have been playing for years. He made an undetectable cheat that gives anyone that uses it countless advantages. People have spent years playing this game. Some of us played competitively and became very good at clan games. *cheat name removed* was then released and people were instantly gaining the skills we worked hard for. Some of us just played public and gained a lot of teamwork strategies and also got good. Again *cheat name removed* made new players equal. *cheat name removed* ruined renegade and it will continue if it isn't stopped.

200% true...

---