Also, I'm not against quick, simple, easy entertainment. But when it comes to FPS's, it's pretty fucking terrible. It just feeds off of the basic hormones of every teenaged guy.

FPS's, to me, should be limited to horror stuff. It's a perspective, not a genre of HURF DURF I SHOOT U FIRST LOL I WIN multiplayer bullshit. Or, rather, it SHOULDN'T be that, but it seems to have become that.

I can somewhat agree with you.

Most games where you can just jump in and play as if you've played this game for a long time, are horrible and decline in value really fast.

Games where it actually take skill have a longer replay value, but you can't just hop into a game and play it well. You look like an idiot to the other players and they have a higher chance of insulting you.

The balance between these two is a key to a great game, and Renegade has a considerably good balance, but gives a disadvantage to the newcomer at this time.
