
Subject: Re: CnC Community : Help U.S. people and SHARE THIS!

Posted by papaelbo on Thu, 01 Jul 2010 21:01:23 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

nikki6ixx wrote on Thu, 01 July 2010 20:14 Do the opposite, and instead buy shares in BP. They're becoming a real bargain.

Indeed. i have seen people make thousands of $$$ in just a few days with only "relatively" small fluctuations in the share price. Of course, this could go either way depending on when you buy but they are unlikely to remain low forever since BP has no real debts to speak of and has been making billions of $$$ in profit for years. That isnt going to change anytime soon.

Sure the final bill for the gulf spill will hit them hard, but that will be paid back over the course of a few years. I think a lot of well known oil companies would have folded if this accident happened to them.

troopr02 wrote on Thu, 01 July 2010 20:19^there is a huge difference between the people of Bhopal (who had nothing anyway) and the people of a developed nation that I can relate to.

Sorry i dont understand your post. Are you saying it doesnt matter because they were a undeveloped nation? Surely you can relate to other human beings? India isnt "that" far back.
