
Subject: Re: Some IRL Drama just went down; your thoughts?

Posted by snpr1101 on Fri, 30 Jul 2010 11:30:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Boofst0rm wrote on Fri, 30 July 2010 05:04lol, you do know that shes legal age of consent in aus is 16

To my knowledge it's 16-18. If you're over 18 you can't have sex with a 16 year old.

sadukar09 wrote on Fri, 30 July 2010 04:59Sometimes you have to trust your sister's judgement. I know what you are trying to do, but you gotta let your sister be independent once in a while. The guy she brought home might have not known she was 16.

Oh, he knew. They have known each other for some time, yet they aren't best friends.

Dover wrote on Fri, 30 July 2010 05:17That is the case, and I don't see anyone in need of help. You haven't said anything about this guy other than that he looks 20ish and didn't shake your hand. What do you think your parents do, exactly?

For starters, do you not have any objection what so ever in relation to the age difference? Apart from it being illegal, it's turning out to be the classic "Hey I can get older guys" and "Derp I'm a loser who can't / cbf to get girls my own age". Do you know how easy it is to get younger girls who have litte/no money, can't drive themselves anywhere and can't buy their own alcohol? It's dead easy. It's a relationship that is clearly not one based upon any real values that you could use to even justify it.

Would my parents have a problem with my sister being a slut? I think so. Do I have a problem with this? Yea, I do. I don't want her to go down that sort of path. If she was 18, hell - I wouldn't of done what I did, because I can accept that as an adult she has the legal right to have sex with anyone she wants.

JohnDoe wrote on Fri, 30 July 2010 04:22snpr1101 wrote on Fri, 30 July 2010 02:24
I'm 18 and would feel uncomfortable hanging out in a 16 year old (minor = hello legal case) girls room.

Pretty sure you'd feel uncomfortable in any girls room.

20 and 16 isn't really too weird (18 and 16 describes literally every high school relationship), except if the guy's looking for a soulmate instead of a nut haha. I remember this dumb fat girl in school that used to have a 34 yr old boyfriend who was a coworker of her dad's when she was like 15 lmfao, now that's fucked up.

I don't have a sister, so I don't know how I would react...chances are the guy's a loser and I don't feel sorry for him getting run outta the house by two melvins.

I didn't think I would have to word it differently to avoid predictable shit; I guess I was wrong. What I was trying to say is that I know how it would make a 16 year old girls' parents feel if they learned I was alone with their daughter in her room without them knowing about it. And I respect that. That's why every girl I've been with has been my age - because they liked me for me; not because of my car, my age or how much money I had.

I'm not saying that my moral standard is the level of expectation for everyone; I'm just pointing out the differences between what is accepted and what is not.