Though just wondering; why not make a bot (embedded) in scripts.dll??
Its called Yarr, I believe and Daniel made it.

Some people (including me) want this functionality because its just awesome to create your own bot. Especially if you know how.

I know a million ways to make a bot and I have but its private, because I barely work on since I have a life and I program for a living. That and I'm getting married soon.

Also [HB] is too complicated since it is like 6 bots in one so it has to be run a quad core. I added text messaging commands but that was a waste of time. that and TS voice commands.
