Quote:maybe you are the best player left then, cause quite frankly me and alot of others cant be fucked leading our superb public player teams to victory over and over again without anything to gain/to play for other than ladder points which resembles nothing whatsoever again, why does it bother you so much? you can't just admit you "clanwars pros" are not the best after all, you've GOT to say it's because you aren't trying. and who said anything about ladder points? why do you bring that up? i'm trying to make a genuinely good public-server ladder, though you're welcome to not care about that. why not play the game for its own sake, and enjoy winning for its own sake?

Quote:as for why: i just think your gettin really cocky out of nowhere, but have fun leading your public team to victory, by all means ;/
i will, it's nearly as much fun hearing the "clanwars pros" excuses for why they are not as good at it.

you're starting to sound like hitman and simpee.

Quote:Be that as it may, 95% of the players on our team were still good skill wise, and had brains and ability. They lacked the experience in say, 10v10 games, sure - so that's where you came in. But I don't think that our winning was due to your leadership as much as you seem to.
the one and only reason you think that is that you dislike me personally.

Quote:Renegade isn't split up just between big games and small games, or clanwar and pub players, you know? There's everything in between too...
is there a point here?

Quote:Quote:or, in my case, a leader who's telling someone to rep you?
Doesn't take leadership to tell someone to repair me. Leadership involves caring, we all cared enough in the commwar.
again, do you actually have a point here or is it just the empty rhetoric it looks like?
