I am saying a med tank driver who can hs inf, kill vehs like a pr0 and lead other med tanks in a grand game of in-game strategy to give GDI the win should be absolutely counted as the better tanker than the other a med driver who can only hs inf and kill vehs like a pr0.

That's all I am saying. I did not have anything at you on that pretty good example.

Hitman wrote on Tue, 07 December 2010 21:43just because i generally dont like to tell people what to do in the most common of games (public) doesn't mean that i can't do this, no matter what u or spoony says about this... im quite certain i have enough insight in this game to lead a team, but i just prefer not to, and if you dismiss that as not qualified for it simply because i choose not to do so, then be my guest.

that's not fair mate, don't you see?

With this kind of logic, ANYONE, can claim to be able to "lead over TS a bunch of attentive newbies" and WIN the game. And when asked to prove it, by this logic, they can get away with it by saying they just "know they can" or "they choose not to."

The logic goes against everything in humans. For example, a would-be president in a free country cannot get elected while sitting in his home and claiming that he can run the country. He has to go outside and put up with making speeches, participating in difficult question & answer sessions and what not to win the heart of the people and their vote.

I really like your optimism and I know you don't suck and you are good but it is mentally impossible to believe it till the deed has been done in broad daylight for everyone to see.

It is truly a case of convincing someone rather than not believing it because of some silly grudge. And I am definitely not like that kind of person.
