seriously lol

I don't know about advertised... but I do know that the majority of the advertisements are for a Black Ops themed Jeep... so that might explain it's excessive advertisements (cause there are already a lot of car commercials as it is, tying a video game into one of them means that game gets advertised a lot too).

But it has been recorded as the fastest selling game in history.

yeah, I think. It was the commercial about a guy getting pulled over late at night but he is bragging about how he jacked a Hind attack chopper. gosh I should have seen it a hundrend times already lol. wth...the only reason is because this is the first time I have seen a computer game been this heavily and virally advertised on almost every channel.

btw, I read in my Time magazine that despite the shit economy, video games and consoles have and are doing very well.
