Me and a friend did dubs on Kino, got to level 40, just finished with a dog round, I had a Thunder Gun upgrade with a Ray gun upgraded, he had a Ray gun upgraded with an RPK upgraded + monkeys.

Would have lasted another 10+ rounds, maybe more, but for some reason I lagged out, idk how because I never lag out. Went back in and got to 38.

You have the time and patience to do something so incredibly boring for that amount of time? Props.

Zombies is fun for the first 5 or so times you play it, then it's just torture, really. It does lag like hell on 360, and that's one of the big issues that they've been fixing. They fixed much of it, including some major drop-out glitches, but I still see and experience "yellow" and "red" lag quite a bit more than other 360 games.

Lol, thanks? And it's fun if you're playing with people that know what they are doing. Instead of just hiding in one spot of the map, and just trying to hold a spot, we run around the entire map just fending for ourselves. It's much more fun.

And, tbh, I haven't had any type of lag related issue since the game first came out, and I play on xbox360. The only thing that I have had troubles with are the servers randomly dropping (but it seems that's been fixed for the most part.) Hardly ever lag unless we get a shitty host or some host from UK or something.

And the best CoD ever was either CoD2 or CoD4 as far as multiplayer. More then likely CoD4, as those two were the most balanced of any cods.
