My computer fills my room with alot of heat, enough to were i sweat. short of buying a water cooling system, is it crazy to customly mount a dryer exhaust vent to my computers exhaust fans to go a few feet to my windows to blow the heat out? maybe add a bilge blower to help pick up the pace if the fans cant do the job? also someone else suggested a marine bilge blower since it can run on a 12 v molex (if u do it right) and it can get wet?

my problem, computer producing alot of heat any suggestions?

please and thank you.
