
Subject: Re: Questions I would like to pose to athiests
Posted by renalpha on Wed, 27 Apr 2011 07:12:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

In my opinion there is no god...

People need a leader just like animals do, and we are nothing different then dogs, cows and or fish.

We always will follow a leader, for example the government.
God is just a made up figure of some very intelligent people in order to practise out, how to let people work for you.

Its really not that to figure out to be really honest.
If there was a god, then there would be a whole more less difference between different people.
Take Africa for example...

What would be the meaning of life for monkeys or chickens for example. Or white-sharks?
Are we better then these creatures which god desides to make?
That would be strange because god would love every individual on earth, but why would he love the people instead of taking care of his trees, animals instead of the humans since we seem to know it better then he does.

Note:

We are trying to be a God, we are doing natures work. Donating sperm, freeze our eggcells and cloning sheep.

God just has been made up by very very clever people trying to let people do. What they want to do. It just got out of the hand.
