Subject: Legacy boards in the works.
Posted by Dave Anderson on Thu, 26 May 2011 00:27:51 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hey Renegade Community,
You may remember that awhile back DCOM Productions was the official home for a few items that had large popularity, such as the Lua Plugin System, SmartBot, SmartEye, and so on. Now, I want to be clear in stating that DCOM Productions does not affilliate itself, in anyway, to the game or title "C&C" or "C&C Renegade", nor does DCOM Productions provide support for said items. However, a new community forum board has been added in the queue of projects here internally, and it has been decided that a legacy board will be available that will contain the entire contents of the old DPDN (DCOM Productions Developer Network) database.

What does this mean?
This means that all of the user accounts, topics, and posts that were already in existence for such items, will be available to the public again. There were many code samples, downloads, and community member posts of great value in the database.

Release date
At this time, the target release date is set for the end of July. DCOM Productions currently has some important local contracts and software to finish before it can commit to another project.

More information will be available as more work is completed. In the meantime, you can of course keep in contact or up to date and also by visting our Facebook and Twitter.

Facebook
http://www.facebook.com/pages/DCOM-Productions/124860917594842
If you like DCOM Productions, like the above link. This will also help me in getting an official url like www.facebook.com/DCOMProductions

Twitter
http://www.twitter.com/dcomproductions