I've been "flaming" these forums since you were 5. Great job using the search function to figure it out. I even have a hall of fame thread and a pretty big cliché regarding "GLACIER FLAYING" to go with it.

I ran Red Alert: APB until 2006 and built it into the only successful mod project this game has ever seen. I've developed at least 50 levels for this game and the engine it runs on, and whenever you run Glacier_Flying, you're running my work. I helped shape the direction of this game in the beta tests from 2001.

What have you done? A few piddly tools that nobody uses, since they're clones of tools that already exist? Some bullshit about bringing RA2 back from the dead with an illegal executable that EA could easily bring down the hammer on you for?

But you're right, I'm nothing. Haven't done anything before. This is my first post, and you're still an illiterate moron.
