

---

Subject: Re: dear crimson

Posted by Starbuzz on Sat, 13 Aug 2011 12:29:41 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Just a follow-up to liquid's post;

If I cheated and turned out to be a complete hypocrite (plus a disappointment for my dearest closest renefriends) and was embarrassed enough to not post for a long time, I would still never have the courage to simply start posting again...especially if I had been on a years' long crusade against cheaters before I got caught.

Good lord, dear Azazel...you can atleast write a apology and say that despite turning out to be a complete liar in the most embarrassing of ways, you can still plan to make a more dignified acceptable comeback. People will make fun comments at first but soon it will be back to normal.

Time does indeed help heal...what it doesn't do is make people forget. It never does...especially when there is no apology.

You seem to mentally "block" or perhaps you have erased the memory of you ever cheating and getting caught (and the great amount of unfair gameplay advantages you had over a thousand now-tainted games) just as you seemed to forget you were cheating before someone just happened to find you afk with triggerbot on.

---